The screenshot shows the CodeChef website homepage. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for 'Courses', 'Practice', 'Contests', 'Login', and 'Sign Up'. The main heading is 'Start your coding journey today'. Below this, a subtext reads 'Learn to code from scratch with job focused courses designed by experts'. There's a search bar with the placeholder 'Enter email' and a blue button labeled 'Start learning today'. Below the search bar, it says 'or sign up with' followed by icons for Google, GitHub, and Facebook. To the right of the text is an illustration of a person wearing headphones and using a laptop, with a red '5' and a yellow '100' floating around them. Below this section, there's a 'Learn to code' section with three cards: 'Learn Python', 'Learn JavaScript', and 'Learn C++'. Each card has a 'Beginner' label and a brief description of the course. At the bottom, there's a small footer with a 'Learn More' button.

Educational Codeforces Round 150 [Rated for Div. 2]

By vovche, bajaj, 3 days ago, translation, CF

Hello Codeforces!

On Monday, June 12, 2023 at 17:35 Educational Codeforces Round 150 (rated for Div. 2) will start.

Series of Educational Rounds continue being held as tradition of some community initiative! You can read the details about the cooperation between Yandex University and Codeforces in the blog post.

This round will be rated for the participants with rating lower than 2136. It will be rated as educational ICPC-style. The penalty for each incorrect submission will be 10 minutes. After the end of the contest, you will have 72 hours to hack any solution you want. You will have another 10 days any solution and test it locally.

It will be given 6 or 7 problems and 2 hours to solve them.

The problems were invented and prepared by authors vovche! Databases: Ivan Boroditskiy Antonov, Vladimir Mikhailov, Grigory Vladimirov! The Car Petrov and his team. Huge thanks to Mike Myatkov for great system Protopia and Codeforces.

Additionally, big thanks to the testers L\_Petrov, Dima\_Alexeev, shapostov and Pavel for their valuable advice and suggestions!

Good luck to all the participants!
